JFY 2021

NO. 202006479-J001

Course Period (online) : From October 22 to December 23, 2021

This information pertains to one of the JICA Knowledge Co-Creation Program (Group & Region Focus) of the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA), which shall be implemented as part of the Official Development Assistance of the Government of Japan based on bilateral agreement between both Governments.

'JICA Knowledge Co-Creation (KCC) Program' as a New Start

In the Development Cooperation Charter which is released from the Japanese Cabinet on February 2015, it is clearly pointed out that "In its development cooperation, Japan has maintained the spirit of jointly creating things that suit partner countries while respecting ownership, intentions and intrinsic characteristics of the country concerned based on a field-oriented approach through dialogue and collaboration. It has also maintained the approach of building reciprocal relationships with developing countries in which both sides learn from each other and grow and develop together." We believe that this 'Knowledge Co-Creation Program' will serve as a center of mutual learning process.

I. Concept

Background

There is no doubt that the improvement of roads is essential for national economic development. Although developing countries have been rapidly proceeding with the improvement of urban roads, using large national budgets and receiving development assistance from foreign countries, inappropriate management and maintenance due to financial difficulties and lack of technology has continuously caused early damage, which in turn has caused excessive traffic congestion and accidents. To manage and maintain roads appropriately, it is essential to regard roads as national assets, grasp and assess the conditions of road structures, predict the financial condition, and consider what measures to carry out and when and where to carry them out. Moreover, it is necessary to manage roads efficiently according to plan within a limited budget (asset management). Appropriate asset management leads to efficient, effective, and appropriate distribution of taxes collected from the people and provision of better public services. In addition, it becomes possible to use foreign countries' assistance most effectively.

Sapporo City experienced rapid urbanization. To solve the problem of managing and maintaining roads, it introduced not only the corrective-type method of "repairing damaged parts" but also the preventive method of "starting repair when damage is small and using roads as long as possible." Sapporo City has been proceeding with measures based on asset management to reduce costs. Referring to the example of Sapporo City, this training course is provided so that the participants can learn how to perceive the design/construction and preventive maintenance of roads with consideration for the management and maintenance system and lifecycle cost. This will enable them to contribute to the improvement of the management and maintenance system to ensure smooth and safe traffic flows in developing countries.

For what?

This program aims to contribute to the improvement of the road management and maintenance system to ensure comfortable and safe urban road service in the participants' countries. The participants are highly expected to actively participate in the course to propose improvement plans of the road management and maintenance system in their governments.

For whom?

This program is designed for the central and local government officials in charge of road management and maintenance.

How?

Participants shall have opportunities to learn essential knowledge and techniques for road management and maintenance systems through online lectures and discussions by learning the case of Sapporo City. Each participant are required to propose an Action Plan describing what he / she is expected to do in his / her home country, making the best use of the knowledge and ideas acquired and discussed in the program.

For Your Reference

JICA and Capacity Development

The key concept underpinning JICA operations since its establishment in 1974 has been the conviction that “capacity development” is central to the socioeconomic development of any country, regardless of the specific operational scheme one may be undertaking, i.e. expert assignments, development projects, development study projects, training programs, JOCV programs, etc.

Within this wide range of programs, Training Programs have long occupied an important place in JICA operations. Conducted in Japan, they provide partner countries with opportunities to acquire practical knowledge accumulated in Japanese society. Participants dispatched by partner countries might find useful knowledge and re-create their own knowledge for enhancement of their own capacity or that of the organization and society to which they belong.

About 460 pre-organized programs cover a wide range of professional fields, ranging from education, health, infrastructure, energy, trade and finance, to agriculture, rural development, gender mainstreaming, and environmental protection. A variety of programs are being customized to address the specific needs of different target organizations, such as policy-making organizations, service provision organizations, as well as research and academic institutions. Some programs are organized to target a certain group of countries with similar developmental challenges.

Japanese Development Experience

Japan was the first non-Western country to successfully modernize its society and industrialize its economy. At the core of this process, which started more than 140 years ago, was the “adopt and adapt” concept by which a wide range of appropriate skills and knowledge have been imported from developed countries; these skills and knowledge have been adapted and/or improved using local skills, knowledge and initiatives. They finally became internalized in Japanese society to suit its local needs and conditions.

From engineering technology to production management methods, most of the know-how that has enabled Japan to become what it is today has emanated from this “adoption and adaptation” process, which, of course, has been accompanied by countless failures and errors behind the success stories. We presume that such experiences, both successful and unsuccessful, will be useful to our partners who are trying to address the challenges currently faced by developing countries.

However, it is rather challenging to share with our partners this whole body of Japan’s developmental experience. This difficulty has to do, in part, with the challenge of explaining a body of “tacit knowledge,” a type of knowledge that cannot fully be expressed in words or numbers. Adding to this difficulty are the social and cultural systems of Japan that vastly differ from those of other Western industrialized countries, and hence still remain unfamiliar to many partner countries. Simply stated, coming to Japan might be one way of overcoming such a cultural gap.

JICA, therefore, would like to invite as many leaders of partner countries as possible to come and visit us, to mingle with the Japanese people, and witness the advantages as well as the disadvantages of Japanese systems, so that integration of their findings might help them reach their developmental objectives.
